Stop the Hate/Unity Rally
Hufnagle Park Gazebo
Tuesday October 7, 2013
6:00 pm
Rain location: CAMPUS THEATRE

Please join CARE, the CommUnity Zone and Bucknell University for a program of spoken word and musical performances by students and staff from Bucknell and the Lewisburg community! Special guest speaker, Susan Mathias, Chief Executive Officer of Transitions, will speak about Human Trafficking including recent legislation and what Transitions is doing locally concerning the issue.

Stop the Hate is part of a national effort calling for people of good will to act nonviolently as agents of healing in their communities, to speak up for the victims of hatred and intimidation, and to raise a united voice against hate-inspired violence. The national rallies began the year after the hate crimes and killings of James Byrd and Matthew Shepard in 1998.

At the end of the rally, we will march to the Campus Theatre to view the film entitled Bully. For more information about the film, visit our Facebook page at

Things We Are Working On:

A Very Important and Essential Annual Fundraiser

We are looking for creative ideas. Please share your thoughts with us.

Circle Singing

We are hoping to do something over the solstice period in December.

Circle Singing is a joyful expression of art and mindfulness. Its roots go back to human's first utterances and campfires, It is a viable tool for community building as it calls us into heart to heart relationship as we breathe together. As we sing in the circle chants and improvised moments of song--we create beauty while at the same time gather strength for daily life in our troubled world. Circle Singing is open to anyone wanting to experience the act of singing, that is not only for the professional pushing a product, but is for all of us seeking self and communal expressions of being in the now with hope for the future and reverence for the past.
